

The 7 Golden Bonus Rules

Rule 1: Licensing is important

Choosing a licensed sportsbook is essential, and we can assure you that all of our top suggestions abide by various gambling laws. We always encourage our readers to rely only on operators which protect their funds and personal information in a controlled and safe environment.

Rule 2: Create an account

Although this rule is logical, many people face challenges when creating their accounts. If you're new to gambling, we advise you to follow the needed steps to log in the sports betting site properly. Advice around registering can also be found at the FAQ section of your chosen operator.

Rule 3: Wagering requirements

Almost all offers come with rollover requirements. The bigger they are, the harder it is to suit them, so be careful when choosing your next betting bonus. The offers which don't have such high conditions can usually be seen in the form of odds enhancements or accumulator bonuses.

Rule 4: Validity

The validity of sports welcome bonuses should also be addressed. As you can see, the terms and conditions section is your friend, so be on the look for this important requirement. Smaller deals will usually require less time to be fulfilled, but sometimes this may apply for others as well.

Rule 5: Markets are important

If a welcome offer is available only for a sports betting market you are not accustomed to, it's always better to pass it by. Fortunately for punters, most sports betting promotions apply to all sports, so the chances of having challenges in that department are slim.

Rule 6: Have in mind payment methods

Some of the financial services included at some of the best sports betting sites might be excluded from the claiming process of promotions. That's why we strongly encourage our readers to read the available terms and conditions carefully. Usually, those are Skrill and Neteller, but some operators might surprise you.

Rule 7: Use the bonuses for fun

Whether you're an experienced player or you're just getting started with sports betting, remember to have fun. When there is no more thrill, and you find yourself playing to cover losses, that's the time when you need to reconsider playing. Gambling shouldn't be addictive and shouldn't break the bank!

Luke Andrews
Betting Expert + Author

